

Humanities and Social Sciences Student Industry Connection

UQ's Humanities and Social Sciences (HASS) Faculty provides a range of programs in which you can actively participate in to support students with their transition into future employment and to help them grow professionally.

Mentoring Program

Mentoring is one of the most effective forms of professional development for both the mentor and mentee. As a mentor, you will help students navigate the transition from university to work.

What will you get?

- Enhanced professional profile
- Improved coaching and mentoring skills
- Fresh perspectives and exposure to new ideas
- Connection with talented students (potential future employees)
- Strengthened leadership and communication skills

HASS students study:

- Communication
- Public Relations
- Journalism
- Digital Media
- Film and Television
- Music
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies
- Anthropology
- Sociology
- History
- Archaeology
- Geography
- Social Science (Cultural, Ethnic and Gender Studies)
- Education
- Languages
- Translating and Interpreting
- Literature and Writing
- Religion
- Philosophy
- Political Science
- Political and International Studies
- International Relations
- Politics
- Criminology

Industry Networking Events

The HASS Faculty organises networking events with the purpose of connecting HASS students and industry partners.

This is a unique opportunity for UQ students to ask the industry partners questions about careers in the humanities and social sciences.

What will you get?

- Opportinuty to be a guest panelist and share your experiences
- Expanded professional network with other industry

Providing Industry Experiences

HASS students offer new insights for our engaged partners. Industry, not-for-profits and community groups that are open to actively working with students through authentic placements, work-oriented projects or work experience will see the abundant benefits.

What will you get?

- Insights of the issues and challenges the community is facing
- New ideas for your start-up or community organisation
- Support with your organisation's research process
- Enhanced capacity to develop policies and stronger inter-government relations
- Access to a diversity of students with different

Providing Industry Insights

HASS students are creative, inquiring, open to new ideas and challenges, great communicators and want to engage in innovation. These are other ways you can connect with our students:

- Present industry challenges in a lecture
- Guest speak on an area of your interest
- Participate in a mock interview
- Collaborate with academic staff to provide ideas and advice in course design

CRICOS Provider Number 00025B

For more information about engaging with HASS students

W linktr.ee/hasspartnership
E studentfutures@hass.uq.edu.au

THE UNIVERSITY OF QUEENSLAND
AUSTRALIA

CREATE CHANGE