Our vision

To equip students with the knowledge, skills and dispositions to shape the future and achieve success in their chosen careers

The degree as a sum of many parts

UQ as a resource for/beyond the degree

Cohort as current and future network

Trigger warning

- The study of crime and justice engages a multitude of prevalent themes and topics;
- Across courses in the program there may be triggering content for many reasons, particularly for those who have lived experience;
- As criminologists we seek your understanding, respect, partnership and support to explore complex issues in a professional manner;
- Our expectation is that we will all work together to promote a culture of safety, respect and care.

Programs that offer Criminology

Bachelor of Arts (single or extended major in Criminology) The Bachelor of Arts is one of UQ's most popular, flexible and diverse programs. Students can complete a minor, or single or extended major in Criminology alongside other courses of their choosing.	Bachelor of Criminology & Criminal Justice (Honours) This is a specialised program of study that prepares you for a career as a criminologist. It culminates in a fourth year of study that brings together theory, research and industry-relevant skills.
---	---

You will receive updates on program activities and news via your student email. You can access information on the program via the website.

Why choose Criminology

Criminology explores issues of crime and criminal justice. As a criminologist, you will understand how the justice system works, why people commit crimes, and have the skills and knowledge to contribute towards preventing and controlling crime and social problems that face contemporary society. The theoretical and methodological skills needed to collect, interpret and evaluate information about crime and criminal justice are a major focus of study.
